Assa Valley is one of the very few world class growing regions on earth that does not have to graft its vines onto rootstock.

The main feature of the old vineyards, planted within the Soviet era, is that they grow on their own roots. These old vines Pinot Noir, Saperavi, Riesling and Rkatsiteli produce superb quality grapes that go into our reserve wines.

We have expanded our vineyards further with vines on the original roots, including Gewurztraminer, Riesling and Cabernet Franc.

Our vineyards are surrounded by ancient burial mounds. These tombs of the noble warrior chiefs of the Saka era are more than 2000 years old, and contain grape pips and wine amphora. Archeologists believe that grape growing and winemaking were then well established in this area, brought from either the Caucasus or Persia to the east. We are on the old `Silk Road` trade route between Asia and Europe.

Wine is described as being served at the tables of the Mongolian Kagans of our area in Buddhist texts from the 6th Century AD.
